

For Immediate Release

Beginning September 11th, Renaissance Weekend, the Brown County Art Gallery Artists Association will be selling one of a kind, hand painted Christmas ornaments. Each ornament will be signed by the artist who painted it, and some will depict Brown County scenes. June Bryan, whose ornament was chosen last year to hang on the White House tree, will be heading up the project, though all artist members are encouraged to paint at least two ornaments for the fund raising project. Proceeds will go to benefit the gallery's Artists Association.

As a preview to the ornament sale, beginning August 26th there will be a display of ornaments painted by "artists of the past" for guests to view. These ornaments are not for sale as they are part of the gallery's collection, but they offer inspiration to the current artist members, and give an idea of what will be offered in the upcoming ornament sale. For more information, please call the gallery at (812) 988-4609.
